

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Transmission of electrical signals can be conducted over a rail. The rail, which may be an at least partially open rail structure, may be disposed within an enclosure, and can be used to transmit data and power signals to an assembly of electrical components.

5 A connector assembly may also be provided to facilitate the transmission of data and power signals between the components and the rail.